

Captured.

Chris Evans, the great Custer, and now and train robber was arrested, Sunday last, at Visalia, California.

White Is Condemned.

The sentence on Monday last condemned the nomination of Senator Edward S. White, of Louisiana, to be associate justice of the supreme court, caused by the death of Justice Hatchard.

six Years.

"Doss" McFaro the disgraced political has been sentenced to six years imprisonment for election frauds committed at the last fall election in the Gravend district Brooklyn, New York.

To Show Causes.

Division No. 1 of the supreme court made an order Monday morning that the intended motion by Judge Price, of Kansas City, for a writ against the Roster of Votes, C. S. Oskay, of Kansas City, citing the letter to appear on before February 23 and show cause why a temporary writ of mandamus should not issue against him, costing him from office.

On Top.

Everybody is glad that Mrs. Leno is won in her fight with the Kansas governor. They do not agree with her economic principles or approve of her political course at that state, but they don't forget that she is a woman and is a right between a man and a woman our sympathies can always be found with the women. In addition to this, the people have come to have a sympathetic contempt for the Kansas governor, and have confidence neither in his sense nor his good intentions. What else may be said of this woman, she has displayed those fighting qualities which America admires.

Rugby.

The legal relationship of a mother to her illegitimate child was on Monday settled by the supreme court in the case of Nance Marshall vs. the Wabash railroad company for damages for killing her son. The court condemned the boy was a "natural" son's father yet living, and that being the case the suit could not be maintained by the mother singly, but only co-jointly with the boy's father. It was shown at the trial that the father recognized neither mother nor son, nor contributed in anywise to their support. The supreme court found that as the father ignored the child and he was the charge of his mother solely, the mother was entitled to prosecute. The case was sent back to the lower court for a new trial on this basis.

For Your Team Again.

The local elections held in various parts of New York state last week resulted in large Republican gains. It is impossible to underestimate the meaning of these victories. They are a distinct protest against the policy of domination and rule embodied in the Wilson fraudulent free trade bill. Every city and county in which elections were held were vitally interested in tariff legislation. Many of the communities are directly dependent upon protection for their support. The Republican campaign was largely conducted on the tariff issue, and local questions were mainly overshadowed by the tariff and general resolution of voters to reward their protest against making permanent the present distresses of American wage earners and to affirm their faith in the protection of American industry.

Has the Right of Way.

Superintendent Hall of the Kansas City, St. Joseph and Council Bluffs railroad, General Superintendent S. E. Crane and L. P. Pendleton, chief engineer of the Burlington, have arranged matters connected with the opening of the Burlington "Extension" running into St. Louis. The Burlington people have had considerable trouble in getting into the city of St. Louis by the way of the recent extension built from Old Monroe to their Franklin street depot in that city on account of the Merchant's Bridge and Terminal company whose tracks they were compelled to run in order to reach their destination. Matters are now arranged with the Terminal company, and all trains over the St. Louis, Kokomo and Northwestern line formerly running into St. Louis from Old Monroe, a distance forty-two miles over the Wabash line, will commence March 4, go over the new line, known as the "Extension."

The interview published last week in the metropolitan press between Secretary Cullis and the home judicious committee purifying verified the statement of Senator Sherman that the centrifugal element of the southern and southwestern plenipotentiary insist upon advocating long-continued financial heresies. Here is the judicious committee, presumably made up of the best lawyers and consequently the most intelligent men in the Democratic party in the south. There is Representative Oates, a really able lawyer, using "if there can be any objection to coming the silver seigniorage or issuing certificates against it." Yet if the owner of a grain elevator should talk in the wheat of farmers and give them receipts therefore, and should then go out and give bills of sale against the same in his own name, every farmer in the land who denounces him as a swindler. Just now there is much that is mutual said of Zebulon Dwyer, banker, but all that the old Zebulon Dwyer has done is to dispose of the securities in his bank, which were destined to be security for the money his creditors had deposited with him. The elevator man and the banker are plied with names, while the intelligent men in congress who are a part of the silver bulls in the treasury, against which promissory notes for more than its value are outstanding, may not be coined or more promissory notes cannot be issued against it, are classified as statesmen. And the puzzling thing about it is that Mr. Cullis and his associates seem to ask such questions as if, to their minds, there can be no impropriety in the governments issuing or selling silver bullion, which it does not own.

The Match.

Whatever the future may have been in store for the wheat trade it certainly looked better the latter part of the past week, the market closing off to May. The feeling throughout was extremely nervous and early scarcely less than tremulous, but the comparative steadiness developed was greeted with satisfaction. The price for May wheat is equal to $10.17 per ton. The cash price is even less than that, and just about equal to 30 cents for the same number of pounds that are contained in a bushel of oats. It compares with not much of an advantage with the current price for good hay. All this is as much to say that the standard grade of wheat is in sleep that nothing would be lost by leaving it to live stock in place of other material, while the lower grades are in much sharper sleep. At that there are positive gains in using them for feed instead of marketing, than in the usual way.

Corn has been arranged in the main. Early it was dragged down slightly by the initial break in wheat, but good buying, the movement, and the freight situations all conspired to move price higher, the market for May closing at $1.75 per bushel.
